Russia Building 'Terrorist Killing' Robo-Cop

Russian techies are developing a series of robots that are designed specifically to do battle in terrorist camps and neutralize terrorists in the act, said Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Rogozin. The robo-cop will also be used to aid in evacuations from the scene of a terrorist attack, he said. Read more

A better fingerprint scanner for frequent flyers

Imagine that you step off a 15-hour international flight with plans to zip right through immigration thanks to your membership in the government-run Global Entry program -- only to find that the scanner can't read your fingerprints. The company that supplies Global Entry, has begun production of a more user-friendly machine - a new generation of scanners may be landing in your airports soon. Read more

US no-fly error 'allowed terrorists on planes'

Alleged terrorists on witness protection could board flights as their new names had not been updated on the US no-fly list, a watchdog has found. The US justice department report said its Witness Security Program had failed to give the new identities to the FBI-managed Terrorist Screening Center. Read more

Flight attendants protest TSA knife policy at Charlotte Douglas

Air travelers may be allowed to carry small knives on planes. But flight attendants don't want that to happen. They protested a proposal to change the TSA policy at Charlotte Douglas Airport. They're also pushing the "No Knives Act of 2013" to permanently ban knives in the passenger cabin. Read more

Bio-warfare adviser warned US of threat of new anthrax while on board of drug maker

Former Navy Secretary Richard J. Danzig, who has served as a bio-warfare adviser to the president, urged the government to stockpile an anti-anthrax drug while serving as a director for the company that supplied it, earning more than $1 million in company compensation between 2001 and 2012. While there is no evidence any nation or terrorist group has achieved it, Danzig warned that could be a devastating threat to the national security. Read more

North Korea fires projectile into eastern waters

North Korea fired a projectile into waters off its eastern coast Sunday, a day after launching three short-range missiles in the same area, officials said. North Korea routinely test-launches short-range missiles. But the latest launches came during a period of tentative diplomacy aimed at easing recent tension, including near-daily threats by North Korea to attack South Korea and the U.S. earlier this year. At least 10 policemen killed in checkpoint attacks in Iraq

Militants killed at least 10 Iraqi policemen in a series of attacks on checkpoints in the West of the country. There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the attacks, but Sunni militant groups have previously targeted security forces to destabilize the Baghdad government, which they reject as illegitimate. God saved me, but I will bomb again, says suicide bomber in Syria

THEY called it the groom's farewell. More than 20 young men gathered around Abu Ismail to shake his hand and hug him as he prepared to set off for a "marriage in heaven" to 72 virgins. Abu Ismail, 25 climbed into a pick-up outside the house in the Damascus suburb of Jobar, waved his friends goodbye and headed for the city centre, carrying 1 ton of TNT. Read more

Car bomb kills 8, injures 10 in Syrian capital

At least eight people were killed and 10 others wounded when a car bomb ripped through Damascus' district of Ruken Addien, local media and activists said. A "big" explosive device was planted under a car in the northeastern district of Ruken Addien, the state media said, adding that bomb squads were dismantling another explosive device in the same area. NY busts multi-million dollar 'cigarette smuggling ring'

New York officials say they have busted a multi-million dollar cigarette smuggling ring. Officials allege that three of the 16 Palestinian immigrants charged had links to known terrorists. The state's attorney general said investigators had recovered only "a fraction" of the proceeds from sales of more than a million untaxed cartons. The amount of money involved remains unclear, but records show the suspects deposited at least $55m (£36m). Read more
