Airport unveils new baggage screening system

A new baggage checking system at Lindbergh Field cuts screening time and lowers the chances of your baggage getting lost. The new automated system uses 500 electric motors and 1.5 miles of conveyor belts to get checked baggage to the right plane in about 10 minutes. Now, luggage goes straight from the ticket counter, through the X-ray machines and onto the plane. Read more

Love Field says airport secure despite breaches

To get anywhere near an airplane at Love Field, a passenger has to go through a security wringer: show tickets and ID, empty out pockets, walk through scanners and take off shoes — maybe more. But last month, officials say, all a Garland man had to do to get near airplanes and jet fuel was accelerate through an open gate and maneuver around a car in his SUV. Read more

U.K. Police Question Two After Pakistan Air 777 Flight Diverted

RAF warplanes were scrambled to intercept an incoming flight from Pakistan yesterday amid fears of a possible hijacking. After the captain activated an emergency signal, they escorted the airliner as it was diverted from Manchester, where it had been ten minutes from landing, to Stansted airport in Essex. Suspected bomb explosion in Bangkok on Sunday night, 7 injured

Bangkok police are investigating an apparently bomb explosion on Sunday night that left seven people injured. Col Narongrit Promsawat, chief of Hua Mark police station said forensic police were inspecting the scene at Ramkhamhaeng. He denied earlier media reports that a man had been arrested in connection with the suspected bombing, Bangkok Post reported. Read more

British soldier hacked to death in suspected Islamist attack

A British soldier was hacked to death by two men shouting Islamic slogans in a south London street on Wednesday, in what the government said appeared to be a terrorist attack. A dramatic clip filmed by an onlooker just minutes after the killing showed a man with hands covered in blood, brandishing a bloodied meat cleaver and a knife. Read more

UK sets up terrorism task force to keep preachers from radicalizing others

Britain's government is setting up a new terrorism task force to tackle radical preachers and extremism, officials said, days after suspects apparently linked to extremist Islamist activists brutally killed a British soldier in a London street. Home Secretary Theresa May said the group will look at whether new powers and laws are needed to clamp down on religious leaders and organizations who promote extremist messages and who target potential recruits in jails, schools and mosques. Rocket fired from Lebanon towards Israel: residents

A rocket was fired from south Lebanon towards Israel on Sunday, Lebanese security sources said, and residents of a northern Israeli town reported hearing a blast. "An explosion was heard. Soldiers are searching the area. The cause is still being investigated," an Israeli military spokeswoman said. A second Israeli military source said the explosion was probably caused by a mortar. Syria conflict: EU to discuss amending arms embargo

European Union foreign ministers are to discuss British and French calls for them to ease sanctions against Syria so weapons can be supplied to the rebels. At a meeting in Brussels, UK Foreign Secretary William Hague is expected to argue that the current sanctions regime, which is due to expire at the end of this week, is no longer working.
