Faced with hefty fees, traveler abandon bags at airport check-in

A traveler on Delta Air Lines Flight that arrived at JFK International from Seattle was questioned by law enforcement officials after leaving several bags at the check-in counter at Seattle-Tacoma International. The passenger apparently abandoned the bags to avoid $1,400 in overweight baggage fees. That Delta check-in lobby at Sea-Tac was closed down for more than two hours, said airline spokesperson Morgan Durrant. Read more

Australia's PNG asylum-seeker solution takes effect

The first asylum-seekers to be sent to Papua New Guinea under Australia's new hardline refugee policy arrived in the impoverished Pacific nation Thursday, with Canberra declaring people-smugglers no longer had a product to sell.

Their arrival formally brought into effect a bilateral agreement reached last month that asylum-seekers arriving in Australia on unauthorised boats will be sent to PNG for processing and resettled there -- even if judged to be genuine refugees. Read more
