Stansted security alert: Passenger 'did not hear bomb threat'

A woman who was on a plane that was diverted after two passengers allegedly threatened to blow it up has told a court she heard nothing "that might suggest the presence of a bomb". Tayyab Subhani and Mohammed Safdar were arrested after the Boeing 777 made an emergency landing at Stansted Airport. The pair, from Nelson, Lancashire, deny endangering the safety of an aircraft. Biometrics researchers see world without passwords

Some Purdue University researchers are working on technology that could see all those passwords that computer users must punch in replaced with steps such as iris and fingerprint scans. The basement lab of Purdue University's International Center for Biometrics Research is where such emerging biometric technologies are tested for weaknesses before going mainstream. Read more

Nigerian Official Praises US Cooperation in Fight against Terrorism

The United States declaration of Boko Haram and Ansaru as foreign terrorist organizations is a significant boost to Nigeria's effort to end their violent campaigns, says Rueben Abati, Special Adviser on Media and Publicity to President Goodluck Jonathan. Abati says the US' action deepens a strong collaboration with the West African nation, in the fight against global terrorism. Read more

Police targeted in Strabane pipe bomb attack

A police patrol was the target of a pipe bomb attack in County Tyrone on Saturday, the PSNI has said. A security alert began in the Ballycolman estate, Strabane, at about 20:25 GMT after a report that something had been thrown at police earlier that evening. A member of the public lifted the pipe bomb and moved it to waste ground at the old Adria factory site. Read more

Bomb kills 6 in Afghan capital before talks on key US security pact

A suicide bomber tore through the Afghan capital Saturday, killing at least six people near the site where thousands of elders are to gather next week to discuss a controversial security agreement with the United States, officials said. Authorities said 22 people were wounded in the powerful blast, which mangled a dozen cars and destroyed shops nearby. Ambulances raced away with the wounded. Read more

Cybercrime conference to examine latest security threats

Some of Ireland's top security experts will this week battle it out as part of a cyber security challenge to see who can exploit weaknesses in a number of systems first. The purpose of the competition, which will be held in a controlled environment, is to demonstrate how attackers could gain access to business systems and to learn how to prevent such attacks. Yemen sentences nine to jail for arms smuggling

A Yemeni court handed down jail sentences of between one and 10 years each to nine Yemenis on Tuesday for their involvement in the smuggling of weapons aboard a ship, judicial sources said. Yemeni forces intercepted the Jihan 1 off Yemen's coast in January. U.S. and Yemeni officials said it was carrying a large cache of weapons, including surface-to-air missiles, being smuggled from Iran to insurgents in Yemen. Read more
