An unknown security breach forced the evacuation of the international departure lounge at Melbourne Airport today. About 1700 passengers as well as retail and airport staff were told to evacuate the building and go through the security screening again after a minor security breach. Melbourne Airport spokeswoman Anna Gillett has confirmed 32 flights experienced delays of up to two-and-a-half-hours, including 23 departures and nine inbound flights. U.S. Said to Warn Airlines on Possible Shoe-Bomb Threat

U.S. airlines have been warned by the federal Department of Homeland Security about credible threats that shoe bombs may be used to attack commercial passenger jets, an agency official said. The department told airport screeners to check passengers' shoes for traces of explosives, said the official, who wasn't authorized to talk publicly about an ongoing investigation. Short waiting list for 'Global Entry Pass' draws hundreds of travelers to New Mexico airport

A short waiting list is drawing hundreds of American tourists and businesspeople to Albuquerque to pick up preapproved clearance passes aimed at helping international travelers quickly move through customs. The "Global Entry Pass" lets low-risk travelers bypass the traditional U.S. Customs and Border Patrol inspection when arriving into the U.S. from abroad, and instead use kiosks to re-enter the country at select airports. The passes have been shown to reduce wait times by 70 percent, officials said. Read more

Could Virgin America's in-flight social network mark the start of a new craze?

Virgin America is renowned for being one of the most innovative airlines, and in keeping with its admirable mindset of never being afraid to try something new, it will launch the first ever in-flight social network before the end of this month. Passengers can download the Here On Biz app and use it to search for, and connect with, other travellers at the airport, on the flight and at their final destination. Travellers simply need to have downloaded the app and have a LinkedIn profile to make use of the service, which relies on Gogo's in-flight Wi-Fi network. Read more

International flight security concerns have been raised as passengers on board a flight from London to New York's JFK were left to bypass immigration when the plane arrived at the wrong terminal. Passengers on the Delta Air Lines flight were let out into a section of the airport where they did not have to pass through immigration or customs. They were only stopped when airport employees realised they were in the wrong part of the airport. Read more
