Man reportedly evades NJ airport's $300M security system

The Port Authority's pricey perimeter-protection system failed again Wednesday when it failed to detect that a man — dressed as a woman — had hopped a fence at Newark Airport and wandered across two runways, sources told The Post. Siyah Bryant, 24, of Jersey City, was wearing women's red pants and a smart brown sweater as he allegedly walked onto the tarmac at about 4:20 a.m. after a tryst in a car near the airport went bad. Bomb threat delays Peach Aviation departure in Taiwan

Over 100 people aboard a flight of Japanese budget carrier Peach Aviation were delayed following a bomb threat, according to the airline. Flight MM922, bound for Okinawa, finally took off from Taiwan Taoyuan International Airport, more than two hours later than its scheduled departure, after aviation police conducted a search of passengers and luggage and found no explosives on board. Airports embrace Christmas spirit to enhance the travel experience

December is set to be the busiest period of the festive season for airports. With queues expected to lengthen and stress levels among passengers likely to rise, a number of airports around the world have embraced the Christmas spirit to keep passengers entertained while they wait for their flights. Here we highlight a few of our favourite Airports. Read more

IATA and ACI collaborate to develop Smart Security system

Airports Council International (ACI) and the International Air Transport Association (IATA) have signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to jointly develop Smart Security which replaces the Checkpoint of the Future concept. The aim of Smart Security is to provide an airport security system that allows passengers to proceed through security checkpoints with minimal inconvenience and enables the allocation of security resources based on risk. The new name is designed to reflect the start of a new phase of pilot testing involving first generation checkpoints. Read more

Egypt declares Brotherhood 'terrorist group'

Egypt's interim government has declared the Muslim Brotherhood a terrorist organisation, a move that gives authorities greater freedom to crack down on the group. Hossam Eissa, a deputy prime minister, announced the decision on Wednesday night after a lengthy cabinet meeting. Read more

'Pounce-2013' China-Thailand anti-terrorism training concludes

The "Pounce-2013" joint anti-terrorism training by Chinese and Thai special forces was held in Camp Erawan, Lopburi of Thailand. This is the fourth joint training between them. During the two-week training, officers and soldiers of both sides carried out 69 training items falling into 13 subjects, including scouting and monitoring, anti-terrorist shooting, special sniping, buildings intrusion, airborne penetration and urban anti-terrorism. South Korea criticises North for 'rude' peace or confrontation questionnaire

SOUTH Korea has slammed North Korea for issuing a "rude" questionnaire which urged President Park Geun-Hye to choose between peace and confrontation. The South's Unification Ministry said today instability was growing in and around the Korean peninsula because of Pyongyang's "unethical and irrational" attitude. Read more

Mall security in need of upgrades, experts warn

After a rash of carjackings, the Associated Press headline announced, "Police, mall management pump up security for holiday shopping." Retailers and mall managers responded to the recent crimes by asking the International Council of Shopping Centers to convene a conference on security issues. And in November, it did — holding a day-long series of talks attended by nearly 300 businessmen and women. That was November 1992 — 21 years ago. Read more

Deadly bombings target Christians in Iraq

Militants in Iraq targeted Christians in three separate Christmas Day bombings in Baghdad, killing at least 37 people, officials said Wednesday. In one attack, a car bomb went off near a church in the capital's southern Dora neighborhood, killing at least 26 people and wounding 38, a police officer said. Read more

Chinese smugglers 'dig tunnel to Hong Kong'

Chinese authorities have uncovered a tunnel from the mainland to Hong Kong, apparently built by smugglers. The tunnel, with concrete walls and interior lighting, started under a garage near the city of Shenzhen and stretched for 40m (130ft) under a river and into reed-beds in Hong Kong. The authorities believe gangs intended to use it to import mobile phones and other electrical goods into Hong Kong. Read more
