U.S. airlines facing pilot shortage

A storm is brewing in the cockpit of U.S. airlines: a pilot shortage. Thousands of pilots are nearing the mandatory retirement age of 65, just as it is becoming harder to be a commercial airline pilot. New federal pilot-rest rules and tougher qualification standards requiring new pilots to have 1,500 hours of flight experience - up from 250 - have come at the same time that throngs of senior pilots will be retiring. TSA to Allow Duty-Free Beverages Through Checkpoints

Passengers arriving in the United States on an international flight who have a connecting flight will be able to take their duty-free purchases of liquids with them in carry-on luggage. The Transportation Security Administration, which is responsible for managing airport security checkpoints in the United States, announced a change to its liquids policy effective Friday. Flight Crews Walk a Delicate Line with Unruly Passengers

A man boarded an Icelandair flight last year and allegedly drank all his duty-free liquor, becoming inebriated to the point where he engaged in a confrontation with a woman sitting next to him. He was bound to his seat for the remainder of the flight by plastic zip ties and duct tape. Sometimes passengers just don't know when to say when. The question is, how does the flight crew know when to say when before it gets to the point of physical restraint? Read more

Delta's new 80's-themed safety video is, like, totally tubular

Delta Air Lines really wants you to watch its in-flight safety videos. That's why the airline regularly creates new, amusing versions of the same old boring safety videos you stopped paying attention to years ago. Remember 'Deltalina,' which featured a sexier-than-average flight attendant. The latest is an '80s-themed video featuring Kareem Abdul Jabaar, Teddy Ruxpin and Alf, who needs help putting on his oxygen mask. Watch Video

Study: Level of airline complaints not based on service quality

Large airlines receive more negative feedback than budget airlines regardless of actual service quality, a U.S. study of airline-related complaints found. A study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology of complaints made to the U.S. Department of Transportation from 2002 to 2012 found passengers of low-cost upstarts tend to complain less even though the quality of service may be the same as more expensive airlines. Tie-up between City and Singapore police on the cards

The Bangalore city traffic police officers would soon be trained by Singapore police on traffic management while the city police in turn would train on managing law and order and crime investigations. The decision has been taken during the Confederation of Indian Industries (CII) partnership summit held in Bangalore. Read more

Russian FSB has poor record against terrorists

The Russian agency taking a lead role in security for the upcoming Winter Olympics in Sochi has a poor track record in Russia's anti-terrorism efforts, analysts familiar with the organization say. The Federal Security Service — the successor to the Soviet-era KGB known by its Russian acronym FSB — has been unable to handle numerous small-scale Islamist terror cells that are increasingly common in the vast country, warn experts. Harper's national security advisor not convinced of airport spying

The prime minister's national security advisor says that he's not "not entirely convinced" that Canada's electronic spy agency tapped into airport Wi-Fi to track the electronic devices of Canadian travellers, but the metadata the agency does collect is "within the legal parameters" of the agency's mandate. Bag catches fire at airport

A suitcase checked in by a Thai passenger leaving for Cambodia caught fire on the conveyor belt while being loaded on Bangkok Airways Flight PG 931 from Suvarnabhumi airport to Cambodia, caretaker Transport Minister Chadchat Suttipunt said. Mr Chadchat said according to the report he received, some goods with a phosphorus content, intended for an exhibition in Cambodia, were in the suitcase. It was believed a chemical reaction caused by heat or friction started the fire. Read more

Gardai smash 'sophisticated' IRA forgery ring

Senior officers said the dissident terrorists were producing "very sophisticated" counterfeit notes at a printing press in Co Meath. And they believed the renegade republicans were well advanced with their scheme to infiltrate the money market with a large quantity of forged "fifties". Read more

Report Cites Money Laundering, Terrorist Financing From Diamonds

The FATF and the Egmont Group of Financial Intelligence Units collaborated on a typologies research project to identify the money laundering and terrorist financing (ML/TF) vulnerabilities and risks of the "diamond pipeline," which covers all sectors in the diamond trade: production, rough diamond sales, cutting and polishing, jewelry manufacturing and jewelry retailers.
