Philadelphia Shooter Attended Radical Mosque

Maurice Hill, the criminal who wounded six police officers in a shootout in Philadelphia and was arrested after a seven-hour standoff, attended a radical mosque. The mosque, called Masjid Ahlil Hadith Wal Athar, is known for preaching the Islamist ideology promoted by Saudi Arabia referred to as "Wahhabism." Clarion Intelligence Network has been aware through its sources that the area where the shootings took place is known for trafficking in guns, drugs and counterfeit items. This criminal market has a strong Islamist element that includes extremist gangs. Hill's older sister said he "occasionally attended" an unnamed mosque, confirming initial reports from our sources that Hill is a Muslim. The sources do not yet have first-hand evidence of the shooter being personally involved in Islamist extremism.

Cesar Sayoc, who sent pipe bombs to prominent Democrats, sentenced to 20 years

Cesar Sayoc, who plead guilty to sending pipe bombs to prominent Democrats and CNN, was sentenced Monday to 20 years in prison followed by five years of supervised release. Charged with 65 felony counts, Sayoc, 57, faced between 121 months and life in prison. US District Judge Jed Rakoff decided that Sayoc's failure to create bombs that would detonate and harm his targets was "a conscious choice." "He hated his victims, he wished them no good," said Rakoff, "but he was not so lost as to wish them dead, at least not by his own hand."

Islamists and Neo-Nazis Are Not Opposites – On the Contrary

You may think that Islamists and neo-Nazis/white supremacists are complete opposites. After all, they're willing to take physical violence against each other to the streets. Both use the threat of the other one as a recruiting tool to boost numbers. But their bitter enmity is surface level. When we look at the views of Islamists and neo-Nazis/white supremacists — what we will call for simplicity, the Far Right — we start to see the similarities. For groups that hate each other, Islamists and the Far Right tend to talk about a lot of the same things.

Utah woman arrested at Manila airport with newborn in bag

An American woman who attempted to carry a 6-day-old baby out of the Philippines hidden inside a sling bag has been arrested at Manila's airport and charged with human trafficking, officials said Thursday. The Philippine officials said Jennifer Erin Talbot was able to pass through the airport immigration counter on Wednesday without declaring the baby boy but was intercepted at the boarding gate by airline personnel. Talbot was unable to produce any passport, boarding pass or government permits for the baby, airport officials said. Public records indicate she has been living in Utah. Philippines officials previously said Talbot was from Ohio, and records indicate she has family connections there.

Pilot: Jet that burned at California airport wouldn't fly

The pilot of a charter jet that skidded off a Northern California runway and burst into flames last month reported that he couldn't get the plane off the ground despite repeated attempts, the National Transportation Safety Board said in a preliminary accident report Thursday. Both pilots and all eight passengers, executives of an Atlanta-based package company, escaped uninjured. The Delta Private Jets pilot felt "just a weird sensation" as he pulled the yoke back and the airplane didn't lift off.

Air traveler accused of punching pilot at McCarran gate

Authorities say an air traveler was detained by Metro Police after he punched an airline pilot at a McCarran International Airport gate where crew members determined he was too intoxicated to board a flight. Officer Alejandra Zambrano says the pilot refused medical attention and the 49-year-old man was issued a misdemeanor battery summons after the incident a little before 2 p.m. Wednesday. The man's name, hometown and travel destination weren't immediately made public.

'Burkini Resistance' — the New Leftist Sham

The latest campaign in the war to normalize Islamism is the push by the Leftist media on 'burkini resistance' that is painting wearing a burkini an act of resistance. On August 22, 2019, Huff Post published an article making this preposterous claim with a headline reading, "When Swimming as a Muslim Woman Becomes a Political Act." The article, written by Rowaida Abdelaziz, saunters into a long romanticized melodrama about "persecuted" Muslim women denied access to beaches and pools because they choose to wear a burkini, a bathing suit that covers the entire body as well as the head.

Sex Slaves Being Held for Ransom by Iran

Young Yazidi sex slaves kidnapped by ISIS in Iraq are being held in Iran and are up for sale. The girls were transferred to Iran by Iranian soldiers from the Syrian city of Kobani, which was once a stronghold of ISIS. According to Iraqi Yazidi activist Ali Elchansuri, there is a significant number of kidnapped Yazidi girls — and boys — being held in Iran for the last two years. At present, two of the children have been positively identified. They are both girls, ages 13-14, and were kidnapped by ISIS when the terror group took over the Sinjar region in Iraq in the summer of 2014. During that siege, most of the men and older boys were killed and the women and girls — some as young as six — were taken as sex slaves. The younger boys were made into ISIS fighters.

TSA Agents Finding More Prohibited Items Than Ever At Airport Security Checkpoints

Thirty-five pounds of prohibited items were taken from travelers at Pittsburgh International by TSA agents this week alone. "Even a knife that small is not allowed on a plane," said TSA spokesperson Lisa Farbstein at the airport Friday morning. Farbstein said too many passengers are trying to bring prohibited items through the security checkpoints. "This is one of the busiest summers that TSA has ever seen," Farbstein said. "We're breaking records nationally." More people mean more items, especially knives, found in backpacks, purses, and carry-ons. The variety of knives taken in Pittsburgh is staggering: from Swiss Army knives to carving knives to throwing knives.
